Deal of the Day

This is the best deal of the day...

This is a very gently used MXULFA. The long story goes something like this. This is my original unit from Zimo. It was a MXULF but has been upgraded to the LCD display. I updated the firmware and it bricked the unit or was a bad version. I had to have a unit while I dealt with the issues so I had to secure a new unit for the shop. It went back to the factory for new software and validation... I probably used it less than a dozen times. It includes the original USB Flash Drive. Sorry, no original box or terminal plugs. The plugs are standard items at any electronics house. If you can wait patiently, I will see about getting replacements on my next order.

This is the original LCD update and does not have the backlit display.

Shell has two screw lug protrusions on bottom face of long hood walkway. No mating clearance hole in chassis so shell does not sit properly on frame. It looks like the two protrusions could be removed and the shell would seat properly. OR, if you have a spare P2K chassis in your treasure chest...
